Briefing

Arsenal Technical High School, Indianapolis, Indiana, is the launching site of the Tech Titan Flight 66. The countdown began September 7, 1965, and ends June 7, 1966, with the launching of over 700 seniors into their adult careers.

America now is living in the exciting and progressive Space Age. Schools all over the country are emphasizing both general and technical knowledge.

Tech prides itself on working toward the goals of good citizenship, cultural development, and vocational preparation.

Space workers, in naming one of their largest missiles, have used the Titan of old as a symbol of power. We at Tech have adopted the symbol as our own. We are almost 5,000 strong, comprising one of the largest high school student bodies in the United States. Our sights are set; our controls are ready. Out of our years of preparation we look forward to the time when we shall make our contributions to the adult world.

Behind us stands an inspiring heritage. A century ago when some of our buildings were new—long before we became a school—our campus served the nation as a United States arsenal. The cannon, a symbol of military power, became a symbol of Tech. We dedicate ourselves to the spirit of loyalty it implies.

We also look to the future. We pledge ourselves to the spirit of high adventure . . . shooting for the stars . . . with vigor and alertness to preserve what America values, and to live up to the name—Tech Titan.

Tech's Gateway to

Knowledge

No longer echoing to the roar of Civil War cannons, the historic Guardhouse now witnesses the passing footsteps and laughter of pupils filing by on their way to classes. Located at the Michigan Street gate, the quaint building once served as a jail for military prisoners. The bars were taken from the windows some years ago, but the campus visitor can still see where they were attached. The building had three cells in the basement. Through later years the Guardhouse served as a cafeteria and as an English classroom. It now houses the office of Tech's custodians.

About half of the buildings on the campus are original buildings. One, the old Artillery Building, where weapons once were stored, was razed a few months ago.

The West Residence, once the home of the commandant, later housed the Cannon Office. It still stands, an inspiring campus landmark, where various offices are located.

The Barracks, which housed the soldiers stationed at the arsenal, is now the headquarters of Tech's ROTC. Pupils practice at a rifle range located in the basement.

In 1912, the United States Supreme Court gave the 76 acre tract of land to the city of Indianapolis to be used as a technical high school.

Every year on May 22, Supreme Day is celebrated at Tech to commemorate this proud event in Tech's history.

Principal Tech-nician

Convincing are the arguments and predictions that the future is one of rapid change. Acceptance of this, in itself, is not enough. The ability to cope with such change and to prepare for it are all-important. As the hunter must lead the flying duck and anticipate any variation in direction of flight, the young person in school today must attempt to visualize his place in the future in terms of what it will be when he arrives, not merely what it is at present.

Education in general and each and every school in particular have tremendous responsibilities. They must design for the future. As this is not an easily visible area, since experiences of the past do not necessarily foretell the paths to tomorrow, it is imperative that our school and all schools be flexible, comprehensive, farsighted, and dedicated to the search ahead for the vision of true preparation.

The need for adaptability to a changing environment, to greater requirements of skills and knowledge, to better understanding of human relations, to the effectiveness of mass communication and rapid transportation, to automation must be a primary concern of the school's total program for every student.

Tech, from its very beginning, so frequently referred to as the "School of Tomorrow," can meet the challenge. Its excellent physical facilities, its truly comprehensive curriculum, its highly trained and enlightened teachers, and its eager and cooperative student body are ready for the task. And readiness does not merely reflect past preparation and accomplishments, but those shifts and advances that make readiness the word for each approaching day.

Campus Events Mark School Year

Hot September days . . . returning Techites buzzing with news of summer vacations . . . the picnic atmosphere of lunchtime lounging on campus benches . . . the mild hubbub of crowds thronging the tomblike coolness of the Arsenal basement to line up at the Bookstore . . . these present a picture of Tech at the opening of the school year.

The gaiety of the Football Jamboree has hardly subsided when plans for the Mardi Gras begin to grow. Techites and their families, returning alumni, and teachers jostle about in the colorful Boys' Gym enjoying an evening of fun.

Then follows a busy time—the grim reality of report cards, followed the same day by homecoming. Senior sponsor rooms compete in the construction of floats proclaiming our determination to beat Washington, our football foe of the evening.

Pupils take two days off for the Indiana State Teachers Association when pupils enjoy seeing teachers go to school.

Then, with hardly a breathing space, we celebrate Veterans Day with its downtown parade in which the ROTC cadets and sponsors march in military review.

Now the exciting basketball season begins, and loyal Techites turn out to cheer the team to victory.

December follows quickly, and the days fly by in hurried preparations for Christmas. Secret plans and club meetings herald the many seasonal activities with the SAO Christmas Dinner highlighting the festive season.

The New Year then blows in with a taste of Indiana blizzard. After finals, the semester ends, and students rest from weeks of concentrated study.

Then comes the all-school variety show, the Sketchbook, with an enthusiastic performance by all.

With the month of April a new trend is started: warmer weather, and the new bright attitudes of students. The Military Ball highlights the social calendar for April, and the track and baseball seasons begin.

In May trees become green again, flowers blossom, and the beauties of the Tech campus cheer the busy routine as the school year nears a close. Tech juniors revel in the prom.

To seniors June means excitement—Vespers, Commencement, the Senior Picnic, and, of course, the Senior Prom. June means sadness as Tech days shorten, as seniors say good-bye to the routine they have followed for four years, good-bye to days they can never share again. But June means new beginnings, too, a challenge to graduates, and anticipation for the seniors of tomorrow looking forward already to the opening of a new school year.

Many Classes for Many People

"Experience is the best teacher." Class at Tech is full of experience, whether it be typing, driving, cooking or repairing a car. The skills learned in each of the 18 different departments are a useful investment in the future. Tech's curriculum is of such a wide variety that any student can find and major in the field of his choice. Some 261 teachers employ all available materials and machines for the advantage of students in the various courses. With opportunities like these, it's no wonder Tech students are so aggressively loyal.

Tech typists Becky Hiatt, Donn Patterson and Mary E. Dalton pick up speed.

Closer Ties With Friends Abroad

During the school year Tech students and teachers won honors as exchangers to and from foreign countries.

Mr. John Peters, our exchange teacher from England, has made a happy impression on pupils in the Biology Department. He traded jobs, schools, and countries with Mr. Garlan Howard who took Mr. Peters' place in a boys' school in Sussex.

As a result of the Indiana University Language Honors Program, Penny Pickett, Kent Nay, and Richard Clark were chosen to study their respective languages in foreign countries. Penny and Kent spent nine weeks living with native families in San Luis, Mexico. Richard studied in St. Brieuc, France. He stayed in the home of a French family for five weeks and in a dormitory for three weeks. All the students had extensive oral drill. They were required to speak the adopted language at all times. The experience was enjoyable and profitable.

Mr. John Peters enlivens biology classes with his charming speech and personality.

Rick, Penny, and Kent return from a summer of study outside the United States.

Arsenal Tradition Reborn Daily

Hurried hellos, clanging of locker doors, and clicking of typewriters—all of these are sounds of the present-day Arsenal.

A century ago, however, different sounds were heard within these walls. Sounds of gold-braided men shouting orders to their command rang through the halls. Plans were being advanced for the future of a nation.

Plans still are made within these walls, but by students, not by the Union Army. The nation's future still is being shaped, but in the hopes and dreams of young people.

The Titans race through the Tech Band's traditional funnel to begin another game.

There's an unmistakable stir of excitement in the air as the big horns blare out the strains of "The Tech Song." The sixty-member band is well organized because of the three weeks of practice day and night before school began. Every day after school till 4:30 the band rehearses in the student parking lot to prepare itself for the coming games. Strutting in green and white, the band performs at games and participates in parades and contests throughout the state.

No football game is really under way until the thrilling music begins. The spectators start feeling the true Tech spirit when the drum major's whistle blows to lead the musicians into action. The bass drum scores with the spectators almost as much as a touchdown does. The high-stepping performers are so enthusiastic and Tech-spirited that their zest just has to rub off on all present.

Sponsor Room 153 saw the Titans steam to victory.

Fireworks, Floats and Royalty

Techites and Washington Continentals alike began filling Tech's Stadium at 7:30 p.m. on October 20. It was Tech's annual Homecoming game, and the festivities began early.

Queen candidates and their escorts rode around the track in a parade lap. Once around, they disembarked, and the ceremony began. After being crowned by Mr. Longshore and presented roses by his wife, radiant Queen Diane Ressler walked from the platform amid the cheers of the crowd. After another "victory" lap around the track the Homecoming game began.

With Tech and Washington deadlocked 0-0 at the half, enthusiastic Techites relaxed to enjoy the exciting halftime show. Now it was time for the float competition, and floats made by each of Tech's six senior roll rooms rolled in front of the crowd. Sponsor Room 6 had the winning float with the theme—"They Smelled De-Feet." To climax the halftime show of band and drill team exhibition, Queen Diane and her court returned to the field. The stadium lights dimmed, and as a royal task, Diane lit the fuse which set off a gigantic fireworks display. Supplied by the Key Club, the fireworks illuminated the sky and spelled the word "TITANS" in blazing letters. Apparently spurred on by this display, the team returned and ended the game victoriously, 13-0.

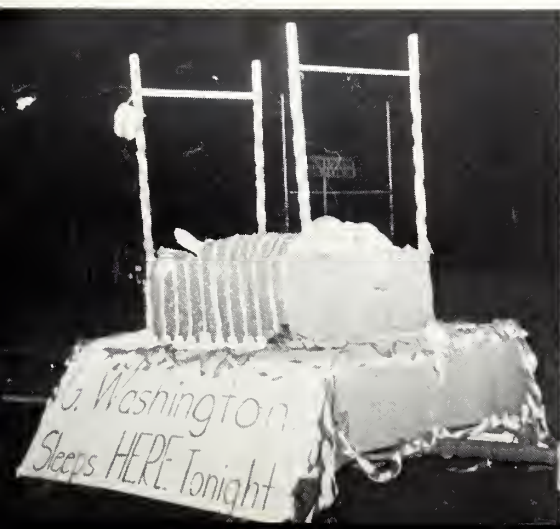

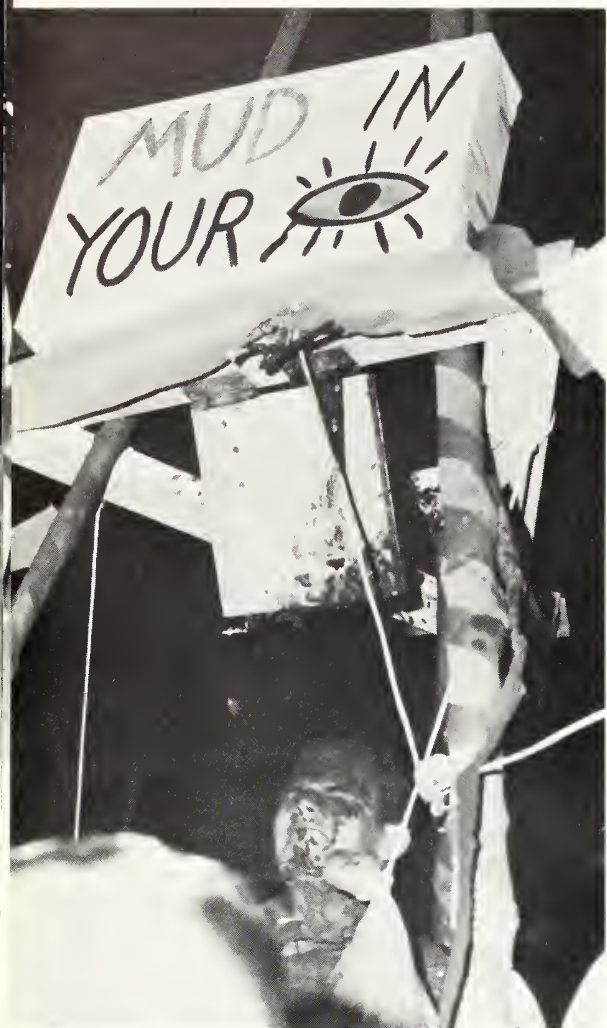

Sponsor Room 6 put its best foot forward to win first place.

Expecting a relaxing evening, Sponsor Room 300 was not disappointed.

Hungrily, Sponsor Room 190 looked forward to a delicious evening.

Losing their heads, Sponsor Room 7 tried a deadly approach for Homecoming.

Dancing on the Moon seemed great.

Harvest Moon Shines Over Tech

Penny and Steve reigned over the Harvest Moon.

The night of November 20 was a night to remember. The occasion was the launching of many Techites on a trip to the moon, the Harvest Moon Ball, that is. Sponsored by the SAO Board and the Service Club, the starry-eyed couples arrived on schedule at eight o'clock to dance away the evening at Tech's fall formal.

A recording of "Everyone's Gone to the Moon," the theme of the dance and a current hit record, was played in the background. Tech's own Dance Band provided the live music.

The dance was held in the new cafeteria which was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Symbols of autumn abounded as Homer, a huge ragged scarecrow, and pumpkins and Indian corn adorned the room. Completing the decorations was an eight-foot oilcloth earth, brightly illuminated by the light of Tech's "moon."

Chris Petree, Penny Pickett, Jill Schmidt, Betty Watts, and Iris Williams vied for the title of queen. Gazing hopefully at the king's crown were Mike Ensinger, Larry Medcalfe, Rod Morgan, Steve Sanders, and Bill Thompson. Penny and Steve were crowned queen and king.

For entertainment, Dave Wise supplied a humorous monologue, the Girls Ensemble sang several songs, and Carol Oakley presented several numbers on her accordion. Cider and doughnuts refreshed the foot-weary dancers.

Soon, the inevitable hour of eleven arrived, and the lunar visitors returned to earth, knowing that this trip, the Harvest Moon Ball, was the highlight of the fall social season.

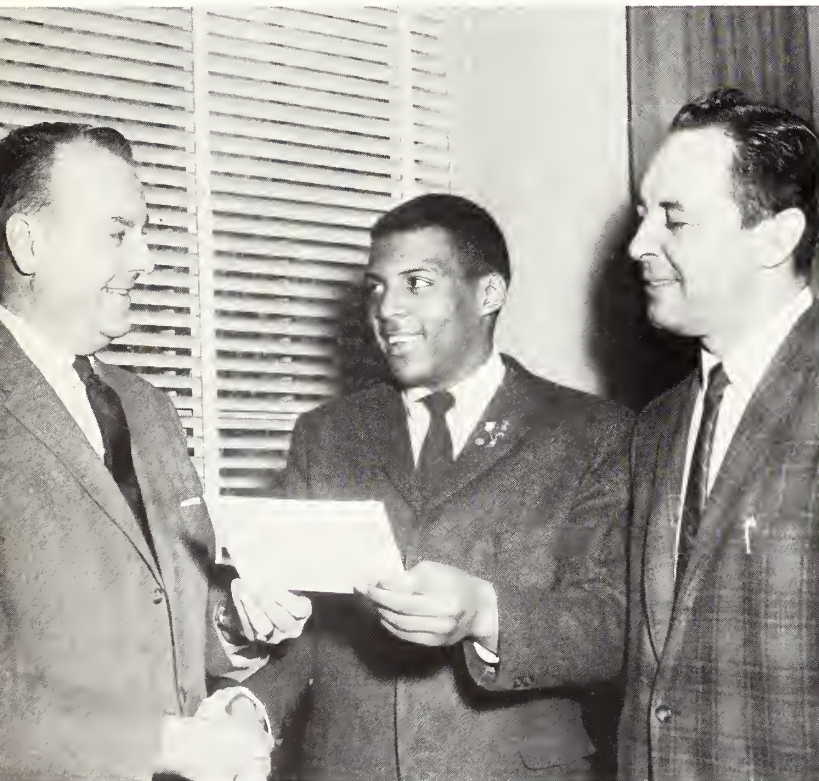

Gary Ray, Rick Clark and Cornelius Stravers attended the Science Seminar at the I.U. Medical Center.

Carol Oakley was chosen by a faculty committee to participate in the Hurst Youth Senate Award Program sponsored by Indiana Senators Birch Bayh and Vance Hartke.

Tech Pupils Bring Home Honors

Rod Morgan received a four-year scholarship certificate from Mr. E. C. McCaig, Indiana District Manager, Shell Oil Company, as Mr. Howard Longshore, witnessed the presentation.

Honors came to Tech this year as pupils excelled in various activities. Inter-school academic competition, participation in panel groups, attendance at seminars and conferences widened pupil experience. Only a few citations are presented here, representative of many other achievements of a fruitful school year.

Sharon Wilson, Norman Weeden, William Wegener, Rick Clark and Sandra Wilson, alternate, had a stimulating session before participating in the Exercise in Knowledge program. Dave Wise, alternate, not pictured.

In the 24th Annual Presentation of the Francis Bellamy Flag Award, Edwin Scahill proudly presented a key to the city of Indianapolis and received the first National Honor Medal for outstanding accomplishment in citizenship.

Mrs. Richard B. Miller of the DAR Irvington Chapter presented the organization's Good Citizenship award to Sharon Wilson in November.

William Wegener and Peggy Berchekas represented Tech at the state mathematics contest held at Franklin College.

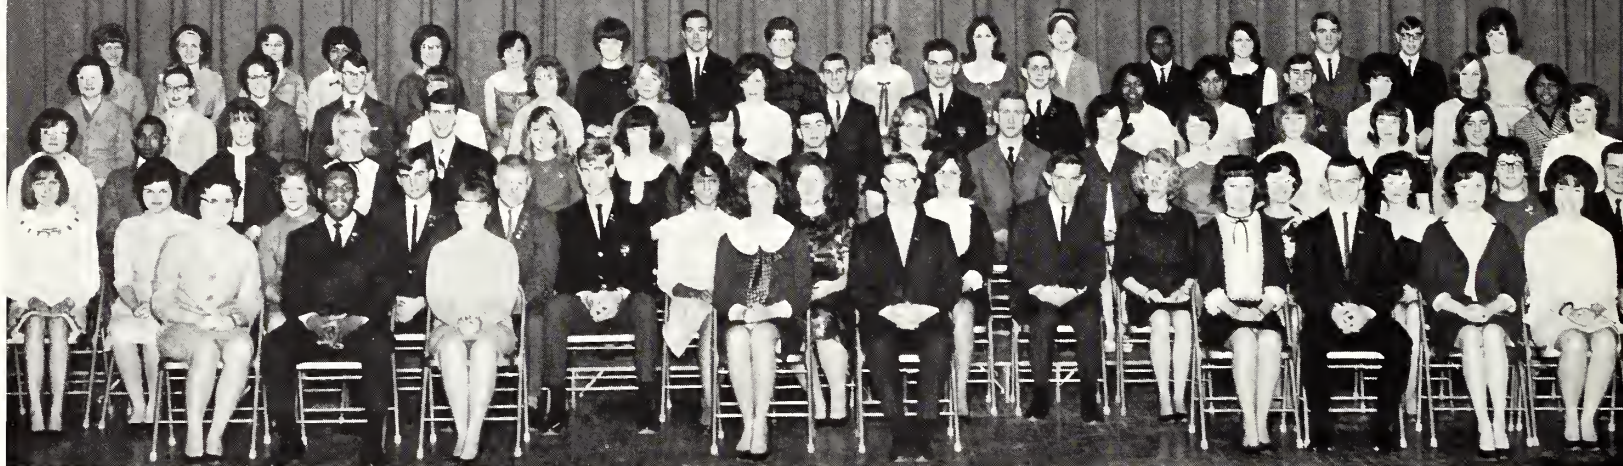

Rod Morgan and Tante Masters received recognition as Tech's representatives at an assembly on Congress and the American Future at Ball State University.

Winners of Regional Scholastic Art Awards were Ronald Jackson, still life; Danny Miller and Donald Shobe, jewelry; Patty Michael, sculpture; Rick Johnson, photography; and Earl Lee, sculpture.

Sandra Wilson and William Wegener represented Tech in the Youth in Government Day Program in November.

Four Years Crowned by Legion

Each year as commencement nears, the ten per cent of the senior class with the highest number of merit citations are chosen as members of the Tech Legion. Mr. Charles Martin, Tech French teacher, established the Tech Legion in 1935 to recognize pupils outstanding in the attributes of good citizenship. Merits earned during the first seven semesters at Tech are counted for Legion membership. Summer school merits are included.

Ranking Legion officers are the co-commanders and the captains. The top boy and girl are named as the co-commanders. From the remainder of the Legion, the top ten per cent are ranked as captains.

Three types of citations are given for various desirable personal traits. Each teacher has the opportunity to award ten per cent of his class citations. Merits also can be earned through extra-curricular activities.

T.T.D. Promotes Understanding

The Human Relations Council is sponsored by Mr. Charles Harry and Mrs. Dorothy Stout to promote understanding among pupils and to improve the already good relations between faculty and pupils. The 16 members are chosen upon application, and it is the plan of the sponsors to maintain a balance of membership as to age, sex, and race.

Guest speakers during the current year have included Mrs. Osma Spurlock, Deputy Director, Indiana State Civil Rights Commission, and Mr. Paul Crafton, Director, East Side Christian Center.

In the fall, the Council sponsored a slogan contest setting forth the annual theme. The winner received complimentary basketball tickets.

The spring project was Tech Tag Days with pupils displaying tags affirming their interest in promoting better human relations.

STRING ENSEMBLE—Marilyn Miller, piano; Donna Hunt, first violin; Linda D. Phillips, second violin; Anne Duthie, cello; Susan Newkirk, viola.

Performances at P-TA and church groups made lasting impressions on four of Tech's musical organizations.

The String Ensemble performed on a full schedule, which included appearances at the annual instrumental contest, the Parent-Teachers Reception, and the Hobby and Gift Show.

The Madrigals, one of the oldest groups on campus, was formed thirty years ago. Their specialty is old English songs and folk music. The group started its season singing at the Freshman Orientation. They also traveled with the Techoir on its spring tour.

The Harvest Moon Ball program was included in a busy year for the Girls Ensemble. They also sang for the Indiana Federation of Teachers. Their music varied from Broadway show tunes to religious pieces. Their goal was to put the music across, not just to sing the words.

The Boys Octette started its season singing at Techoir's annual Kick-off Banquet. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Simpson, the boys spent long hours rehearsing for their many and varied programs. As the boys sang with meaning, they impressed many audiences during this past year.

the Band Marches On

Chris Petree, head majorette, and Claude "Butch" Stuart, drum major, stand proudly beside Tech's big drum.

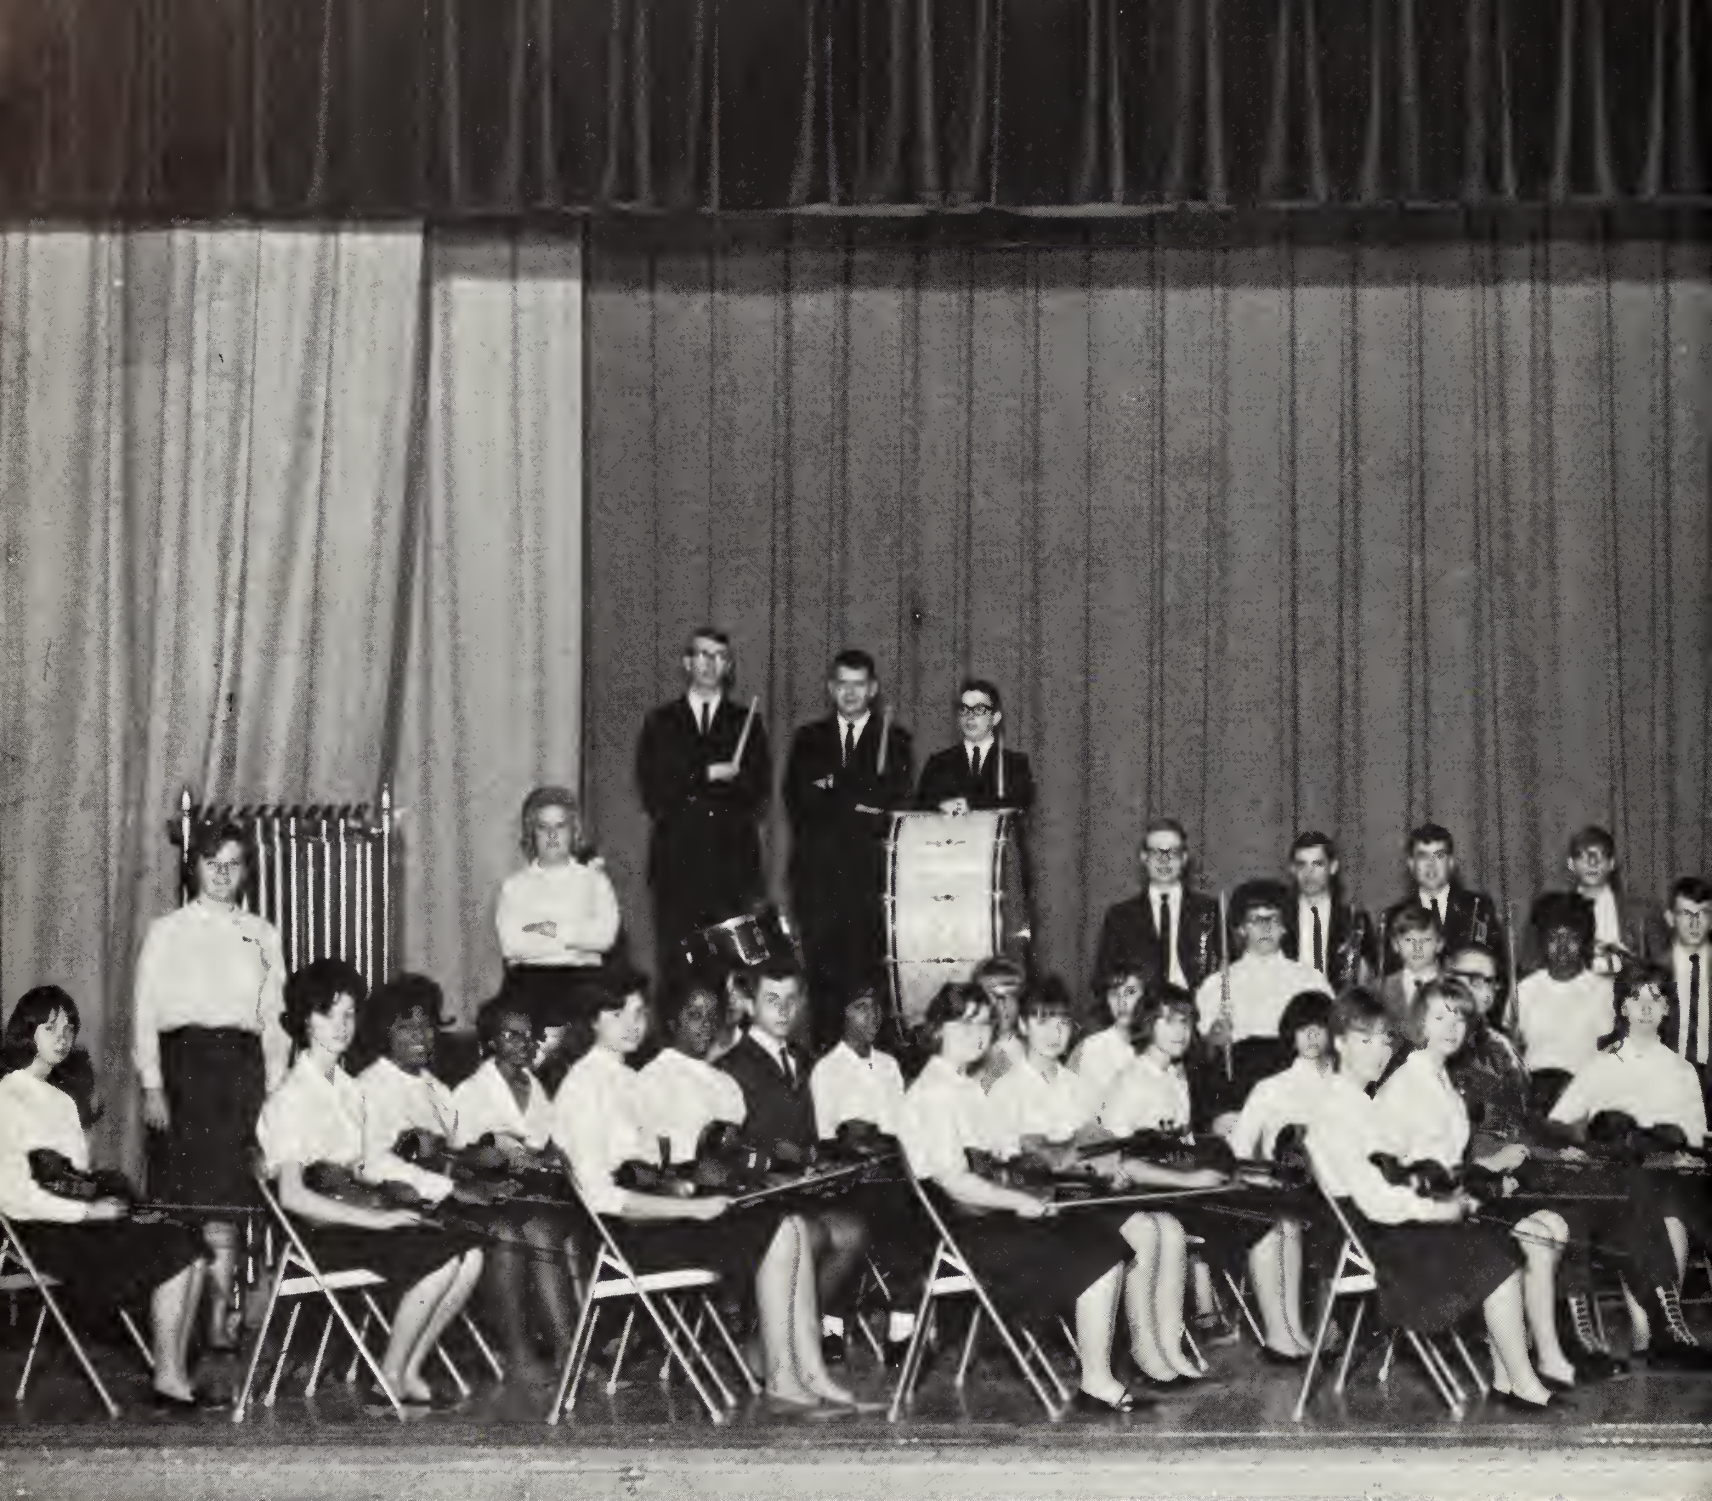

At all Tech athletic events there is a body of students who are working as hard as the team members on the field—the band. The band practices every night just as the teams do. They supply the team with moral support and entertain everyone with music. This year's band of fifty-eight boys and girls, sponsored by Mr. John White, evidences great enthusiasm.

The band is led by Chris Petree, head majorette, and Claude Stuart, head drum major.

Many persons think that being in the band requires only a knowledge of the instrument, but band members must be able to march in time and move in intricate patterns as well. Band members also sell candy to raise money for uniforms.

The Concert Orchestra is composed of approximately sixty-five talented musicians. Directed by Mr. Raymond Brandes, the orchestra makes tapes of various music ranging from classical to modern, for broadcast on an Indianapolis radio station, which airs programs from different schools nightly. A traditional performance is that at the Christmas assembly.

The spring concert in March is considered by many the biggest musical event of the year. The band and the orchestra combine to give a polished performance.

Tech's Alive With Sounds of Music

The Tech Music Club is bubbling with activities like the champagne music of Lawrence Welk. Mrs. Patricia Baxter, the new club sponsor, helped make this year's club an outstanding part in the lives of many Tech musicians. A concert, featuring a Japanese man performing on the koto, an oriental stringed instrument, was only one of the many musical spectacles the club attended. Each club meeting offered a different type of musical entertainment, presenting to the members all forms of music—classical, jazz, and rock-n-roll. Every Tech music student could find something worthwhile in this club, and many did, as the attendance records show. Music will continue to flow from the Music Club to delight and refresh its members.

The Boys and Girls Concert Clubs play an important role in Tech life. The main purpose of the clubs is to prepare members for next year's choir. Only once in the spring do the clubs combine to give a concert. They sing at some of the school assemblies and perform for the church and P-TA groups.

Picking up the beat, the Dance Band, under the leadership of Mr. Stephen Behlmer, practiced after school. One of the activities of the band included their annual performance at the Mardi Gras. The band also played for many of the school dances.

Composed of 33 poster-hangers, ticket-takers, tea-hostesses and program-planners (or—energetic Tech-ites), the Executive Board of the Student Affairs Organization is responsible for numerous campus activities.

Elections for the class representatives, Jamboree Queen, Princess of Light, Track Queen, and Yard Parks Queen all are conducted by this group. Various service projects, such as Teacher Appreciation Week, the Teachers' Valentine Tea and Student Scholarship Tea, the Annual Student-Faculty Game for the Anderson Scholarship Fund, and the representatives' tea and body meetings are directed by the SAO.

Each year a gala Christmas dinner for parents, friends, and invited guests of the board members is prepared, while the underclassmen honor and mimic the seniors at the annual May Breakfast.

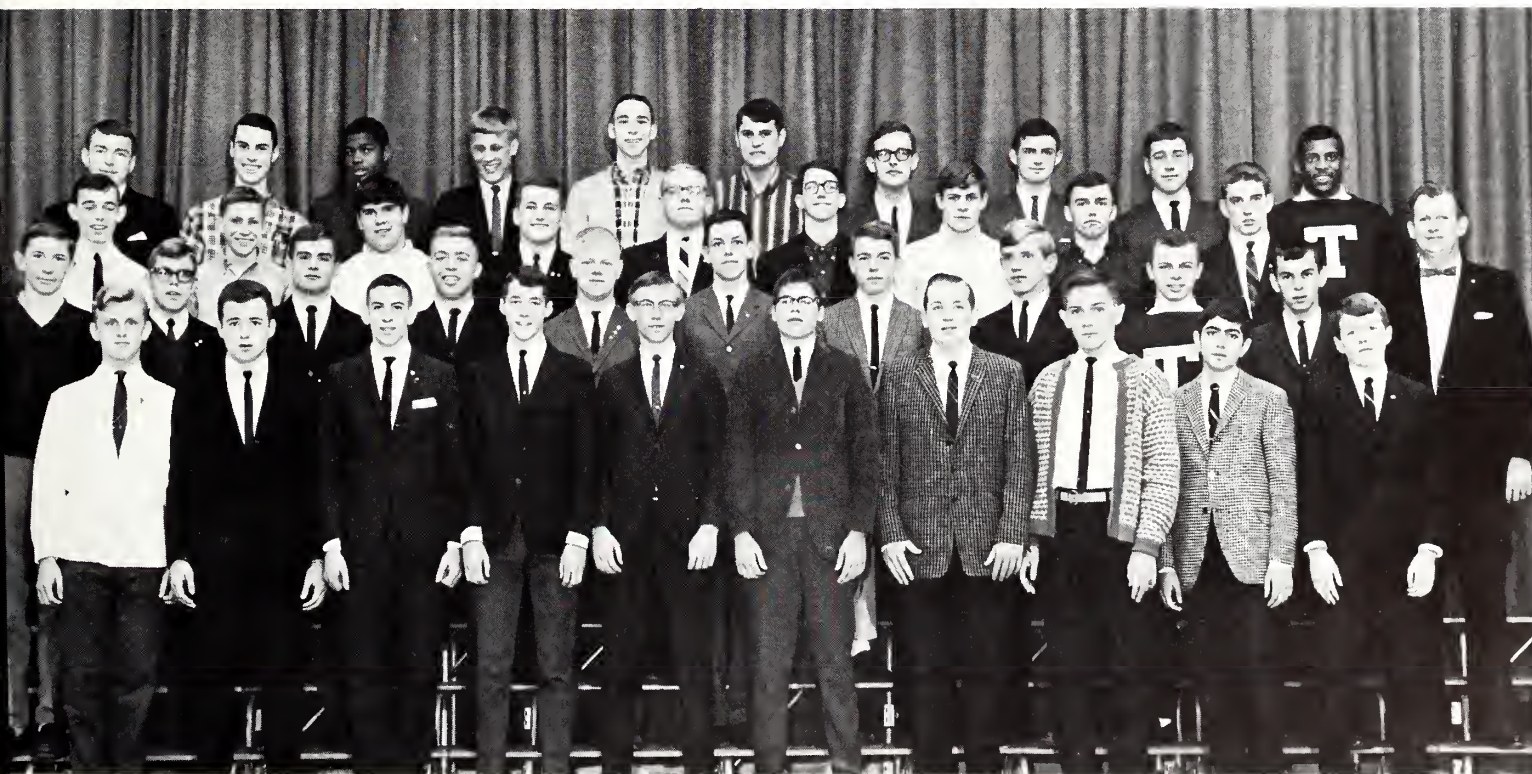

Ed, Rod, and Bill preside over this early Wednesday morning club meeting.

Traditionally, the Homecoming festivities and the Turnkey Dance are the two main events that the Key Club sponsors during the school year. This year the club scored a first by providing a fireworks display for the Homecoming celebration. Members also kept busy by operating concessions, waiting on tables, and ushering at various school functions.

Last summer Mike La Grotte, Frank Keesee, and Richard Storm attended the Key Club International convention held in New York City. They brought back with them new ideas on how to promote better club and school spirit.

Primarily a service club, the group is an international organization chartered by the Kiwanis Club. Mr. Mahlon Carlock is the sponsor. Application for membership is open to any boy with a C average, who has no disciplinary record and has an interest in serving the school. There are forty-five members this year.

Staff Records School Year

Moving into new quarters with a new adviser, Miss Bernice Jones, the yearbook staff began the year with a period of adjustment. Leaving the old offices in the West Residence caused much sorrow, but spirits brightened when the staff saw its new room. In offices on the second floor of the new Cafeteria-Music Building, yearbook production took on a modern look.

Having decided on the theme, the staff began to plan lay-outs, write copy, take pictures and then crop them, sell ads, and do all the many tasks associated with meeting the ever threatening deadlines.

With the launching in June of the Tech Titan '66 yearbook, staffers look back on an educational and rewarding year.

Cannon Weekly Marks Firsts

Sharing new quarters with the Cannon yearbook, the Arsenal Cannon weekly staff sought new ways this year to give their readers a more attractive newspaper. More pictures and more variety in page layout characterized the '65-'66 issues.

Tech's offset printing press was used this year for the first time in the Cannon weekly's history. Second semester issues were printed on the standard letterpress, however.

In the fall, Susan Meeks, editor in chief, received the first Arsenal Cannon Alumni Association sweater award, emblematic of outstanding staff achievement.

In the spring, the following staffers were so honored: Linda Wooten, Cheryl Harding, Sharon Wilson, William Wegener, and Sandra Wilson.

The white sweaters with green cannon insignia are given to staffers in recognition of the fifth semester of superior publications work. A minimum 5.5 overall grade average is also required.

The 29 issues represented the efforts of about 40 staff members.

Actors Reflect Varied Moods

Messy lessons in make-up application, hurried rehearsals for Mardi Gras sketches and the worry and excitement of opening night appealed to theater-minded Techites. The Drama-Speech Club, sponsored by Mrs. Doris Webber and Mr. Robert Maloy, offered these activities. Members learned more about the many facets of theater production and worked to perfect their acting skills.

Pupils who excelled in these productions were awarded membership in the National Thespian Society. Points for admission could be earned by acting on stage or working behind the scenes. Two all-school plays, January Thaw and Life With Father, entertained their audiences. Several one-acts were also presented.

Ken, Jim, Linda and Susie pleaded with Kathy in this scene from January Thaw.

Competition Attracts Speakers

Sue Brockman, the team's most successful speaker, and Susie Meeks, NFL president, show the ribbons which fulfilled Tech's "Great Expectations."

Veteran members and novice speakers combined to form this year's speech team. Team members who earned 25 or more points at meets were honored by membership in the National Forensic League. Headed by the new coach, Mrs. Linda Vaughn, and NFL president, Susan Meeks, the team enjoyed an active year. Attending an average of one speech meet a month, members worked hard to bring home the ribbons. Dramatic, humorous, and oratorical interpretation, original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, poetry and debate were some of the areas in which Tech was represented. From the very first of the season, team members set their sights on the national meet for winners of state competitions to be held at Albuquerque, New Mexico, in June.

Practice for Perfection

Supplementing classroom work with everyday experience, members of Tech's foreign language clubs found a useful opportunity in the year's activities.

Competent officers, an interested sponsor, and eager members made up El Circulo Espanol, the Spanish Club. Sponsored by Miss Maria Lagadon, the club participated in the Mardi Gras, and then made plans for a Spanish dinner and a pitch-in fiesta. Guest speakers afforded an opportunity to improve listening skills.

Observing French customs, the French Club sponsored a buche de Noel, which is the French version of the Yule Log.

Four issues of Le Petit Canon (The Little Cannon) were written by members and distributed to French classes.

Mrs. Susanna Underwood, German Club sponsor, started the year with a club party at her home at which the students prepared potted plants for the Mardi Gras.

For the holiday season, the club printed songs in German and circulated copies for students to learn. Another project was attendance at the film, Sound of Music.

At Tech, the JCL is affiliated with both state and national Junior Classical League organizations. At their meetings, members played games involving the use of Latin, and enjoyed guest speakers.

Preparation for the Veterans Day parade, with practice marching at 7:30 on Thursday mornings, paid benefits for the entire ROTC unit. They captured a first place in competition sponsored by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce. The prize, a beautiful American flag with a gold eagle at the top, was awarded to Tech because units marched in near-perfect formation, and all orders given by the commandant were obeyed correctly.

An earlier project of the group, under the sponsorship of Sgt. Thomas L. Dawson, was a campaign to improve relationships between officers and noncommissioned personnel. The organization promoted courtesy and good will to all.

With the approach of the big annual event, the Military Ball, members were kept busy with arrangements and the sale of advertising to finance the affair.

During the year, the Rifle Team won second place in the City Postal Match. The team participated in matches throughout the year at Tech and at other schools. Practice sessions were held in the basement of the Barracks.

The final weeks of the year were devoted to plans for Federal Inspection.

Senior activities closed the year, with juniors giving the graduating officers a farewell party.

Club Members Serve and Learn

Three of the most active organizations on the Tech campus, the Service Club, the High School Red Cross Club and the Future Nurses, all have an active concern for school and community welfare.

To the Service Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Judith McBride, freshmen owe much of the planning for the orientations they received in September and in January. This is an annual responsibility of the organization.

With membership open to all students, the club is one of the largest on the campus. The group sold mums at Homecoming and sponsored the popular "Cider-A-Go-Go" booth at the Mardi Gras. Together with the SAO Board, they sponsored the Harvest Moon Ball.

Always interested in community affairs, they prepared Red Cross overseas chests and participated in the Multiple Sclerosis Drive. Annually the club has prepared a Thanksgiving basket as well.

The High School Red Cross Club sponsored a clothing drive for unfortunate families in the Appalachian area. They helped to provide a second Christmas for residents of orphanages and homes for the aged. They joined with the SAO and the Service Club in entertaining teachers at the Valentine Tea.

Membership is open to all students. One member is selected annually to visit Kent State University Leadership Development Center in Ohio. This year's representative from Tech was Nikki Kennison. The High School Red Cross Club is sponsored by Miss Hester Hale.

Those interested in school and community health and in nursing careers find opportunity in the Future Nurses Club.

Members attended High School Day at Indiana Central College. The group also visited Marion County General Hospital School of Nursing and other hospitals in Indianapolis.

The group sponsored community projects during the Christmas season, and invited guest speakers for some of their meetings. As its contribution to the Mardi Gras, Future Nurses successfully conducted the "Ring-a-Prize" booth.

The club holds a national charter, and is sponsored by Miss Blanche Williams, R.N.

Pupil Interest

The only club on campus requiring a federal license to operate, the Radio Club, is unique. The club trained its members to obtain their own licenses and aided other schools in beginning new clubs. This year the club worked with the W.A.S. certificate as its goal. This certificate is awarded to radio clubs when contact has been made with all states in the United States. Besides most of the states, Tech's club has contacted Mexico, Belgium, France, Russia, Israel, and many other countries.

Combining scholastic education and vocational training, the members of the Diversified Cooperative Education Club gained much from the experience. The Employee-Employer Banquet was one of the main highlights for DCE members this year. Pat Abbott and Jacqueline Michael were Tech's voting delegates at the state convention at I.U. in the fall.

During the school year, Y-Teens enjoyed splash parties and a hayride. They contributed money to Tech's scholarship fund and aided at hospitals and nursing homes. Y-Teens also had membership in the YWCA.

This year the Chess Team added something new. Chess meets with other schools by active varsity and reserve teams sparked action. Prizes were awarded at the end of the year to the most successful players.

Clubs Provide Varied Program

Using the facilities of Tech's well equipped Print Shop, Future Printers learned much about their chosen occupation during a busy club year.

Chemistry-Physics Club members broadened their scientific knowledge at meetings in the Old Shop Building. Experiments using the fundamentals of physical science made membership rewarding.

One of the largest and most active clubs on campus was the Natural Science Club with its weekly meetings and many educational field trips. A journey to the Indianapolis Zoo was a highlight of their year.

Squares, triangles, and circles provided basic concepts for two Tech clubs. XYZ Club members used these figures in the mathematical sense. Art Club members employed the forms in a more creative way. Numerous field trips gave members experience of value in hobbies and prospective occupations.

Titans Post 9-1

Billy braces for bruising blow.

As the Titan team left the Shortridge Field, with excited Techites in pursuit, one of the best football seasons Tech fans have ever witnessed drew to a close. The Tech gridders had defeated Shortridge in a thrilling game that assured Tech a share of the city title. The smashing 9-1 record, the best since '57, also placed the Titans in the state's number two spot.

Tech's only setback of the season came against a strong Cathedral team on a humid, 80-degree evening. The Titans blasted back, however, upsetting undefeated Manual. The following week the gridders downed the top team in the state, Kokomo, 27-13. Even after making a second bus trip due to a light failure in Kokomo's stadium, they made a spectacular appearance before a hugh Kokomo Homecoming crowd.

The Shortridge game proved to be a dramatic ending to a dramatic year. Probably one of the hardest-fought and most exciting games of the season looked like a runaway with Tech leading 13-0 at one time. But with 1:15 seconds left to play, Tech fell behind 14-13. Determination played a key role in the Titan offense as they drove 41 yards in 29 seconds.

This year's team was privileged to have in its back field two of the best ball carriers in the city. All-State junior halfback, Jessie Ealy, became known for his long runs and precious second efforts. Picture at right (bottom) shows Jessie as he dives for the extra yard. When the team was in need of a tough yard for the first down, Leroy Robinson was on the spot, muscling his way through the stone wall of the opposing team. On the line were co-captains Mike Ensminger, center, and Rod Morgan, guard. These boys did a tremendous job leading their team in a championship season. Pictured at right (top) with Coach Medcalfe, these captains not only played a good game, but did an excellent job sparkling life into the team when spirits were low. Certainly Techites will be proud of this team for years to come.

The reserve footballers barely made the winning ranks with a 5-4 record. The year was slow starting with three losses in the first four games. The next three weeks produced three Titan victories without letting the opponents score. With the stronger reserve players and second year varsity teamed up, next year's varsity shows strong possibilities.

The Freshmen tied in the win-lose column at four each. With the strong running of Milton Allen, the Freshmen scored against strong opponents. Coaches Caskey and Hurrel did a fine job of teaching the newcomers the art of the game.

Feminine Talent Adds Sparkle

Adding feminine charm and sparkle to Tech's all-boy athletic contests, the Majorette Corps bubbled through many routines this year. The group presented the flags and entertained at pre-game and half-time shows. The girls also marched with the band in various parades.

Led by head majorette, Chris Petree, the corps was composed of four different groups. The five majorettes perfected baton routines for the games. Flag routines were the specialty of the six flag twirlers. The four trumpeteers and the four colorguards joined in pre-game activities and pom-pom routines.

These groups are sponsored by Miss Shirley Parrett.

TRUMPETEERS: Brenda Bailey, Joyce Miller, Sharon Smith, Dora Hart.

Majorettes left the stadium after performing in Mexican attire.

Titan runner, Paul Glaspie, moves toward finish line.

Braving the brisk fall weather, Tech's cross country team made a fine representation of the school, running against stiff competition. The Tech Harriers had a good season, winning four out of five dual meets, but could fare no better than seventh in the rough sectional competition. Jerry Roth led the Techites finishing a strong second place, in his class.

Carrying the Tech banner proudly, the Freshman runners did a tremendous job, winning all dual meets, finishing first in the Broad Ripple Invitational, and capturing city title. Led by Mike Boofer, it looks as if those "greeny" runners will bring Tech a bright future in the two mile circuit.

For those not familiar with Cross Country scoring, the low score wins—runners receiving one point for a first place, two points for second, and on up to twelve points for a twelfth place finish.

Matmen Wrestle for Winning Year

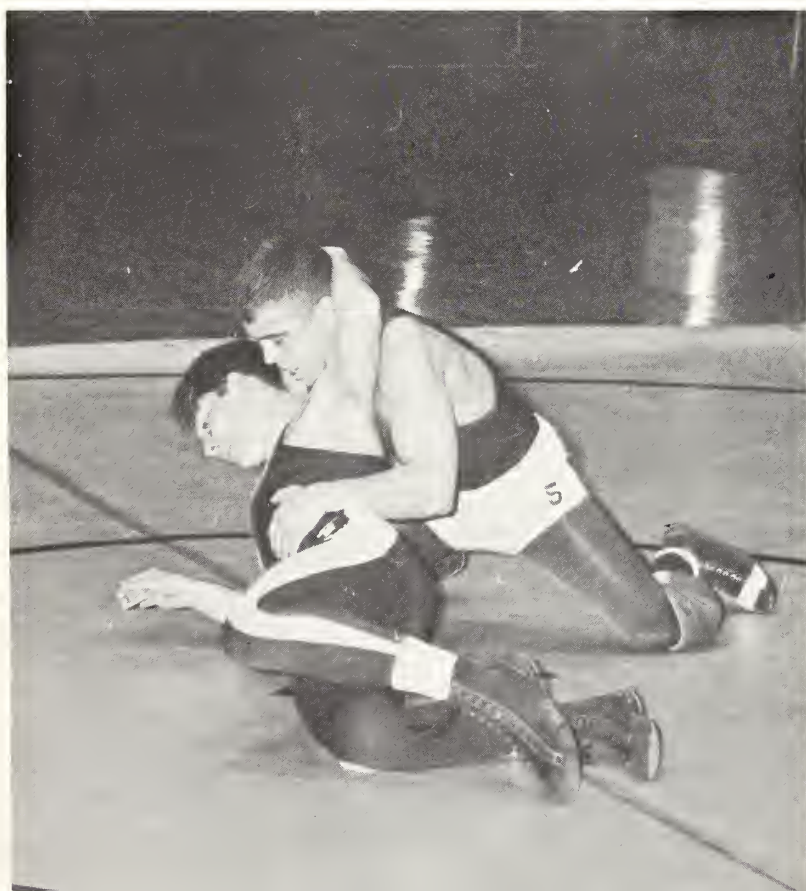

The matmen poured energy, spirit, and determination into their specialty this year. Many meals went by untouched so that weight could be made for an approaching meet. Wrestling is an individual's sport. When the grappler comes up against someone his own size, it's win or lose between the two.

Tech was represented in the state finals by Leroy Avery in the 138 pound class. Leroy was beaten in the finals but not before putting down many opponents in a very successful year. City champ Steve Dildine, who lost only 3 matches all year, and Mike Ensminger, a sectional champ and winner of 17 matches, helped Tech wind up with a 7-6 record. Tech will return next year with another terrific team to participate in this rough and tumbling sport.

Titan grappler, Calvin Hardesty, has upperhand over Southport opponent.

Leroy Avery practiced holds in preparation for the State Finals.

Cheers Fans Fun

When the Titan team ran onto the floor, a thunderous roar rose from the stands. Two things could be credited for this reaction. One was the great team performance shown this year. The other was the energetic demonstration of the cheerleaders that led all Tech fans in urging their team to victory. With overflowing pride in their school, the girls never lacked enthusiasm to spark their team.

The girls went through routines almost as strenuous as those of the ball players. With Mrs. Mary Lou Manka as sponsor and Tante Masters as captain, the varsity squad seldom failed to draw applause from the stands.

For the first time in years they were assisted by a huge Tech cheerblock, the Titan 300! With over 400 members, these Techites made it evident to the team that they were being backed 100 per cent.

Sadie Hawkins night found cheerleaders dressed for the occasion.

Techites "went wild" after defeating heavily favored Washington.

Very few loose balls got past the alert Titan green.

Titans Blast Into Tourney Orbit,

After a terrific season of 17 wins and 3 losses, the Titan team rocketed to its peak and climbed to the final game of the State Basketball Tournament. With two of their three losses going to Howe, the team looked forward to a third crack at the Hornets in the Regionals. But Howe bowed out to under-dog Beech Grove, and Tech had a near-clear path to the Regional championship.

Stiffer competition awaited the Titan ten in the Semi-Finals, but determined players downed Aurora 81-64 and Greensburg 79-75, becoming Semi-Finals champs.

This placed Tech in the Finals—a surprise to all except the Tech family. After three week-ends of victory celebrations, the Titans met a heart-breaking defeat in the final game. Eight teams fell at the hands of the Titan ten before the crusade was stopped by Michigan City 63-52. But the celebrating continued, for every Techite was proud of the fine performances of the team throughout the season and especially in the tournament.

Freshmen Capture City Titles

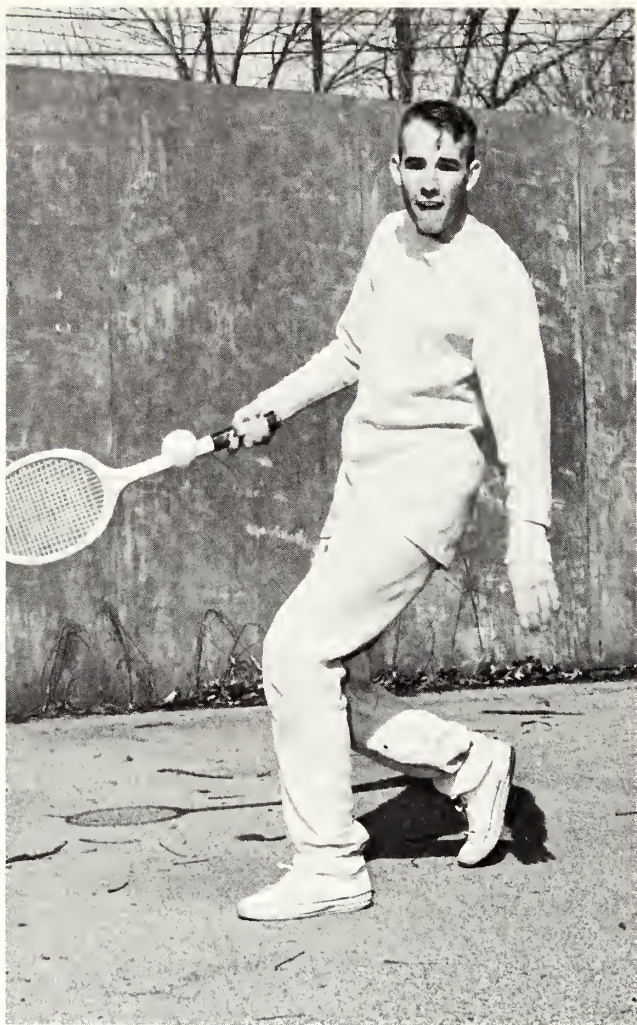

With the Freshman and Reserve Basketball squads both capturing city titles, the future may be a bright one for Tech. Both teams are full of individual talent and that all-important drive in working as a team.

The Freshmen squad went into the city title bout with a 9-1 record. After defeating 3 other teams they bumped off Washington 44-41 in the finals. Coach Cline's boys finished the year with a 17-3 record.

The Reserves finished the season 15-7. They defeated Washington 46-44 in the final game of the city competition. Coach Meditch thinks the boys will be ready to fill the varsity spots for next year's team. An encouraging feature of the team is its well balanced scoring.

Lynn Gartrell prepares to return served ball.

Individual talent can be expressed best in golf and tennis. These are sports that require skill and form of the participant.

The tennis team began practicing in the gym before the weather permitted outdoor practice. With spring temperatures, the boys made a quick trip to the tennis courts. The tennis team had its share of new members this year with high hopes of developing into good representatives for the school.

Golf is one of the less strenuous, but more difficult sports offered at Tech. Perfect form in swinging the club is a necessity for a good golfer.

Techites need not fear being hit by flying balls on campus, for most of the team practice is done at the Pleasant Run Course.

COACHES: Mr. John Eason, tennis; Mr. Phillip Quillin, golf.

Mike Ensminger and Frank Renfro look on as Jerry Ferguson gets in the swing of things.

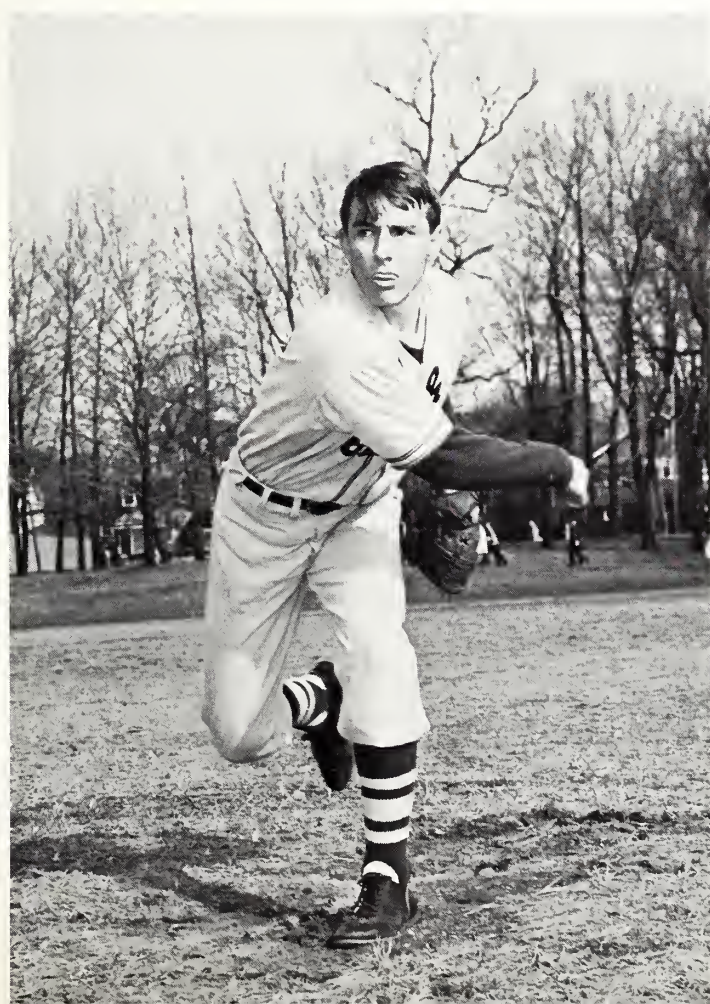

Baseballers practice batting. Mike Hickey catches as Eddy Montgomery keeps eyes on the ball. Waiting to bat are Roy Craft, John Fogleman, William Mansfield and Ed Scahill.

Baseball Makes Tech Scene

Jack Schafer hurls ball toward strike zone.

Coach Ivan Moreman

Before the snow had melted with warmer weather, the crack of swinging bats echoed across the Tech campus. With the first signs of spring, Tech's Babe Ruth's were on the diamond preparing for another year of rough competition.

Hoping to improve on last year's record, Coach Moreman found the weather suitable for early practice. With the first of March, the boys were in uniform, looking forward to some exciting baseball action. A winning season bloomed in the minds of all Titan baseball fans.

Perfect form was used by Jeff Holbrook and Jesse Ealy in jumping hurdles.

Titan Track Team Talented

Relay team members passed the baton in early practice session.

Muscles bulged as shot-putters John Jarrett, left, and Ron Baker prepared for approaching season.

The track team proved to be very talented this year. Four years ago the Freshman City Track Meet was won by the Tech freshman team, and now these boys are seniors. The time came to win again.

The distance runners practiced all year 'round, and could often be seen striding through the campus. This year's team started early in the season with very good times, and as a result of hard and long practice, had an excellent year.

One of the strongest members of the team was found in Marion Casey, pole vaulter. Last year, as a junior, Marion placed fourth in the state meet.

Distance runners Larry Medcalfe and Jerry Roth became quite familiar with Tech's quarter-mile oval.

With messages issuing from the Arsenal, Tech's own "mission control," vice-principals and directors, guided the Titan Flight '66 to great heights. Keeping up-to-date on school life data, these men worked consistently to maintain a smooth course for the thousands involved at Tech. Theirs was the task of coordinating activities, of planning the financing of the project, of the scheduling the work, and of maintaining the launching area. These were the details that centered in "mission control."

Staffs Are Vital

Working behind the scenes, five groups of men and women assisted in the operation of the school.

Departmental assistants performed tasks ranging from secretarial and clerical work to the ordering of supplies.

The office staffs of both the day and evening schools kept records and worked directly under the vice-principals to keep a careful and precise log of the Titan Flight '66.

Dispensing books and supplies to Techite customers, the Bookstore staff worked hard to keep up with the constant demands of the students.

Listening to recorded music as they drank their milk shakes, pupils relaxed and enjoyed their new cafeteria during one of the four lunch periods at Tech. Housed in the new Cafeteria-Music Building, the student lunchroom is equipped with 144 tables and 1,365 colorful modern chairs.

On the same floor are located modern kitchens for food preparation and classrooms for commercial foods classes. Also on the first floor are the faculty dining room and lounge.

On the second floor rises the unheard blare of horns and the beat of drums from the Music Department. Unheard? Yes, for the new building has been sound-proofed to prevent disturbing other classes.

The Publications Office of the Arsenal Cannon weekly and yearbook left their traditional home in the West Residence to occupy quarters on the second floor of the new building.

Classes

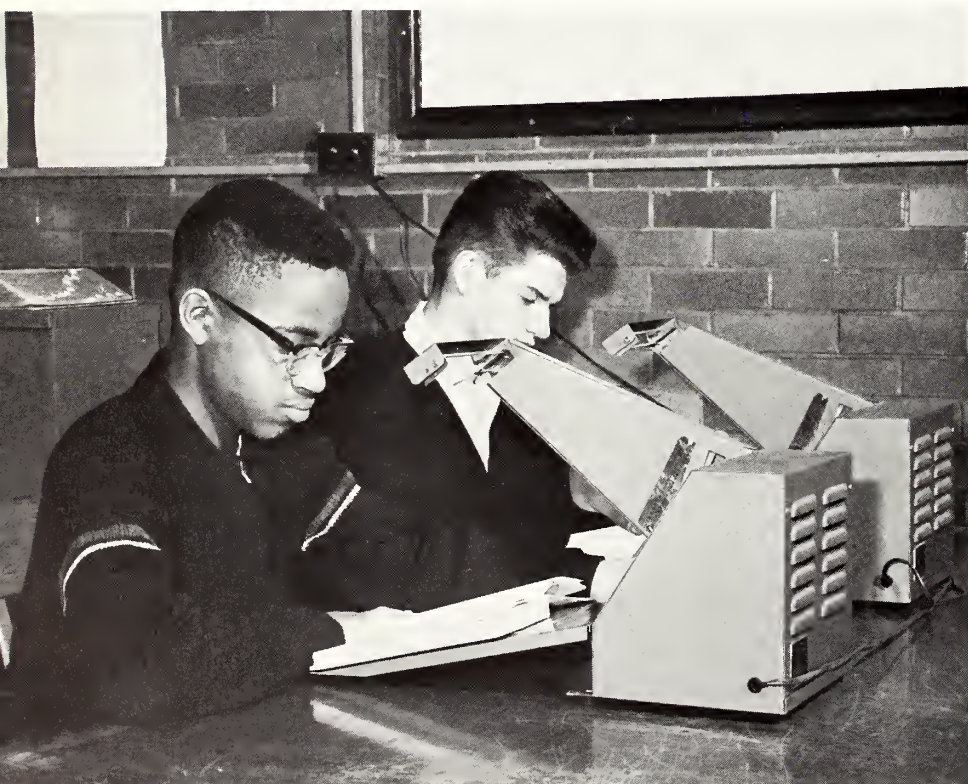

Using the English Department's new overhead projector, Bruce Weber explained fundamentals of punctuation to Miss Hester Hale's class.

Grant Imel and Clinton Sparks discovered the slide rule long problems.

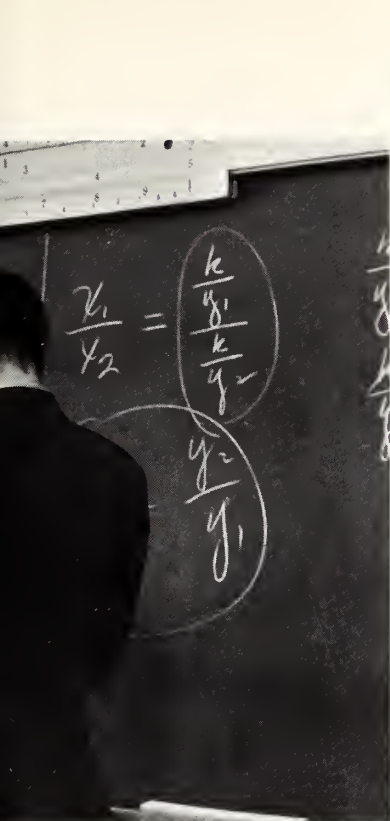

New Teaching Methods

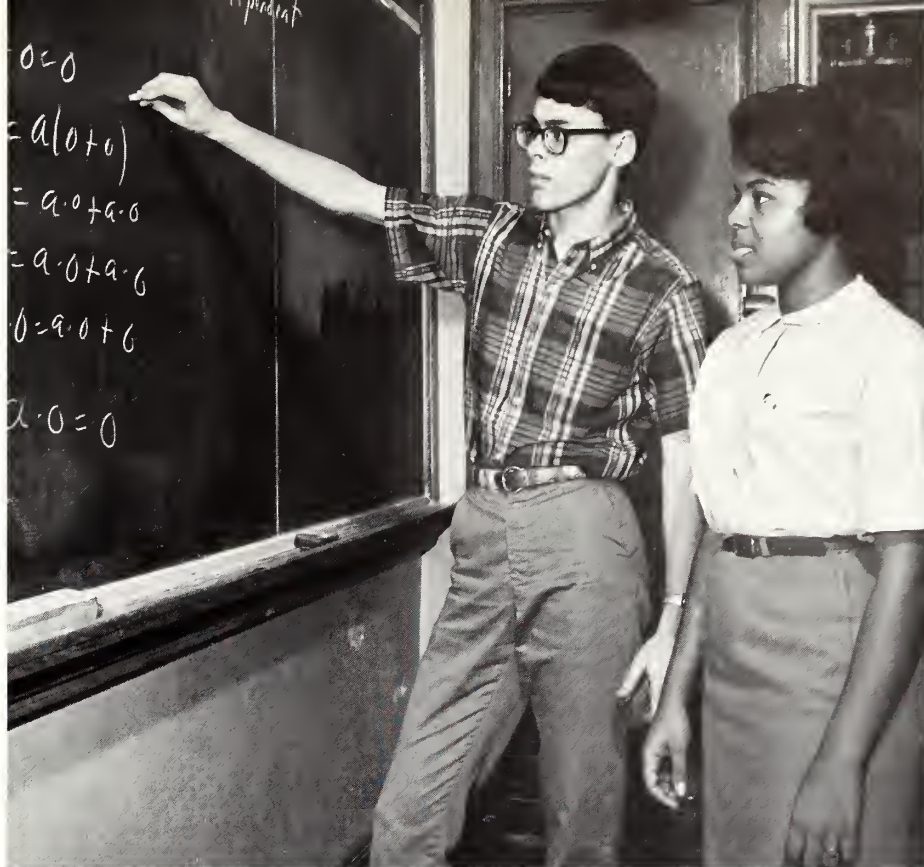

Everett McClung and Ernie Lynn were two of the many students who benefited from Tech's well equipped Reading Laboratory.

Brenda Spears and Raymond (Chip) Evans found interesting reading in the department's book rack.

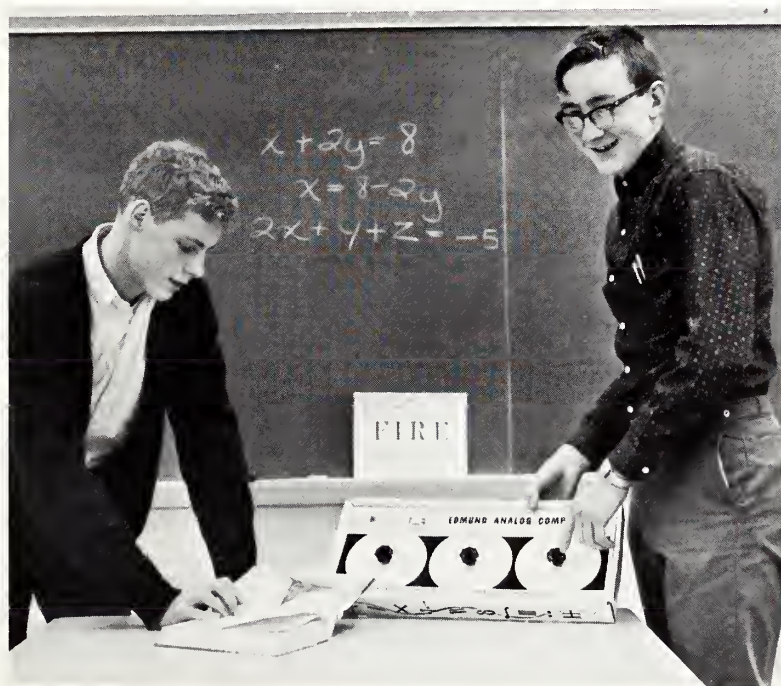

cut the time on some of those

Larry Pryor demonstrated to Debbie Barnett some of the complexities of new math.

Modernize Tech's Departments

Jim Jacobs and Dan Renault found the answer to rough math homework by use of a computer.

Headed by Miss Irene Rhodes, Tech's English Department was the largest and most populated on campus. As six credits in English were required for graduation, most Techites were enrolled in one of the 180 daily classes. Forty men and women made up the staff, and taught accelerated, normal, slow, and remedial classes in English I-VI, and advanced courses in literature, composition, and speech.

Special activities made many classes more interesting. Mr. Thomas Danheiser's modern literature class made a detailed study of William Golding's Lord of the Flies. Mrs. Doris Webber's classes designed and wrote Christmas greetings to be sent to Viet Nam.

The Math Department, one of largest and most important on the campus, operates with Mr. Robert Belding as its head. At his side are 20 other qualified teachers meeting 96 classes a day, with an enrollment of 2800 pupils. Classes range in levels from practical arithmetic to the complex analytic geometry, a course for college-bound students. The teachers not only teach but attend school themselves in order to prepare themselves in the new math.

Donna Fogleman, Jon Burroughs, Margaret Godwin, Joseph Matlock and James Stacey wait eagerly for instructions in German class.

Are Ellis Hines, Paula Chambers, and Gina Hamby in Spanish class or Driver Education?

Foreign Language Is Fun! Si, Si! Ja, Ja!

Pupils used the Language Laboratory for ear training in French. First Row: Paula Scott, Howie Pfeiffer. Second Row: Rosemary Robertson, John Picot. Third Row: Dennis Russell, Vivian Pender.

The Foreign Language Department offers four years of French, German, Latin and Spanish and a one-semester course in Latin and Greek derivatives.

Four semesters in one language constitute the basic course.

A second language is a necessary tool for anyone who serves his country or his business in a foreign land—a tool which enables him to communicate with and to understand the culture and thinking of the people among whom he lives. By the same token, foreign language study is a necessary part of the schooling of the truly educated person.

Latin seems fun for John Ealy, Mendy Ross, and Becky Muse.

The American Way Is the Tech Way

The highlight of the year for the Social Studies Department was the visit of two prominent political figures on campus, Senator Birch Bayh and Dr. Fern Stukenbroeker, a former FBI agent. Senator Bayh spoke in the Forum and in various government classes on the importance of being an American citizen, participating in government, and understanding what it means. Dr. Stukenbroeker spoke on the menaces Communism presents to society, the effects of totalitarian government, and the importance of students' learning and appreciating their American heritage.

The main purpose of the Social Studies Department is to help students gain a good understanding of their American heritage, their government, and its mechanics.

The department is devising new techniques of teaching and using new materials and books.

Senator Bayh did a little "politicking."

An American History II class watched as Ronald Baker and Alice Cook located strategic points on the map.

Art—A Creative Adventure

Artists attempt to capture life in pastels, with Angela Thomas as model.

Tom Mattingly and Roberta Couch choose several plaster casts for use in advanced art class.

Equipped with models, books, and exhibits, Tech's Art Department is one of the finest in the state. The department, headed by Mr. Oakley Richey, offers Tech students a wide variety of courses including painting, drawing, designing, commercial art, craft art, sign painting, photography, jewelry, and sculpturing.

John Herron Art Institute sends many displays to Tech, and they are shown in the department art gallery which is dedicated to Mr. Robert C. Craig, former art teacher. The art library, in memory of Miss Elizabeth Jasper, Tech's first art teacher, is also a part of the Art Department.

LaVerle Syfert and Jane Howard design posters telling about Techs' evening school in their commercial art class.

Belinda Ransom creates an intricate mosaic in craft art class.

Pupils Explore Job Offerings

Marshall Trimmer used his knowledge of photography in his DCE job at the Farm Bureau Co-Op.

On-the-job training, combined with credits for graduation, made Diversified Cooperative Education interesting for the 29 pupils enrolled in the class. Sponsored by Mr. Jack Longshore, the pupils worked in 16 different occupations. Graded on both class and job performance, the pupils spent a minimum of three hours on the job with one class period devoted to DCE-related general studies. Students desiring to work in DCE were required to be at least 16 years old.

The Exploratory Teachers' Program was established in 1952 as an effort to correct a serious shortage of educators. Still a popular class, the group enrolled 15 in the fall semester. Pupils considering a profession in education did practice teaching for two periods daily in a subject of their choice. Such duties as recording absences, checking homework, and preparing and grading tests were allotted to these student teachers. Only seniors with a 5.0 average qualified for the one-credit subject. Pupils were evaluated by their teachers who sent the grades to the group sponsor, Mr. Clyde Smith.

Exploratory teacher Barbara Noffke received practical experience from teaching these first graders at School 74.

Pens, Needles, Pots and Pans

Hat-making was just one project that Brenda Decker and Dorene Bates accomplished in their millinery class.

This year, as all years, the Home Economics Department has been striving to build better individuals and to promote happier family living conditions. Pupils are trained, not only for future careers, but also for all phases of homemaking and family relations.

In the domestic science classes the students study human relations, child care and development from infancy to twelve years of age, and also housing and home development.

From the family living point of view, the students are studying home nursing, foods, and nutrition. They are interested also in personal grooming and the selection and making of clothing.

Paula Frazier, Gloria Davis (serving rolls), Kathy Stearns, Katherine Martin, and Janice Miles participated in a classroom luncheon in Foods III taught by Mrs. Mildred Wallace.

Donna Leveque, Fred Cook, and Sandy Meadors demonstrated equipment in Commercial Cooking class taught by Mrs. Ruth Stafford.

Band members get in step at an afternoon practice, making ready for Friday night's game.

Music Makers Enjoy New Quarters

Trying some new equipment in the Music Department's recording studio are Ken Volstad and Mr. Robert Simmons.

The Music Department is probably the most fortunate department at Tech, using the new $1.5 million building for the first time this year. With a quantity of practice rooms, recording equipment, and four huge chorus rooms, Tech now possesses some of the best music facilities in the state. Classes range from beginning chorus to advanced chorus, and included orchestra and band. For the more advanced music students, courses in directing, music appreciation, and music theory are offered.

Working under Department Head, Mr. F. William Moon, are seven well qualified music instructors. This staff's ability is evident when their music groups perform. Whether it be at an all-school assembly, a football game, or a half-time basketball performance, Techites enjoy the accomplishments of the Music Department.

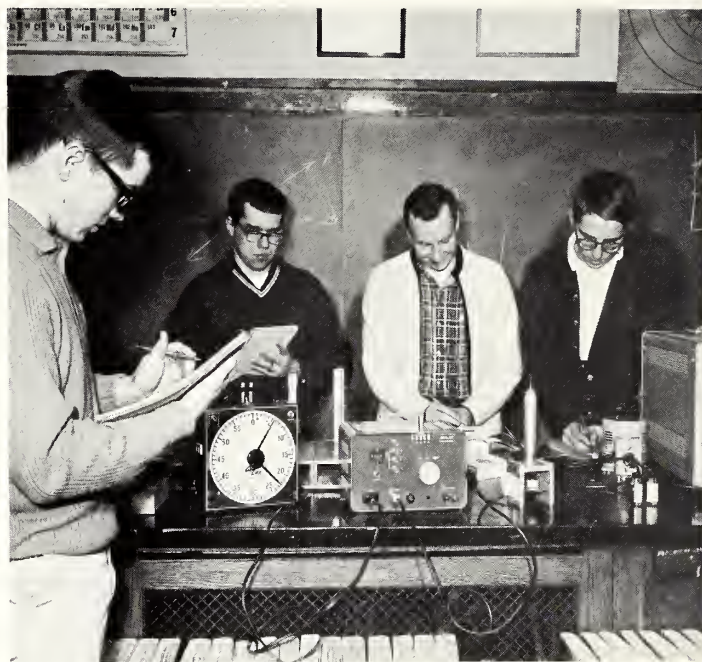

New Equipment Promotes Science

Modernization was the key word in the Physical Science Department this year. As a result of much renovation, the department had new tables, sinks, and storage cabinets in four of the classrooms. An oscilloscope was purchased to be used in advanced physics classes. Chemistry pupils used new science kits that enabled them to perform experiments on radioactive samples.

Other pupils took advantage of classes in earth science being offered experimentally.

Mr. Louis Allen, department head, and 14 other teachers instructed the 40 classes in the department.

Joyce E. Miller and Lynn Gartrell work together on a chemistry experiment.

Don Guthrie, Charles Wendling, George Wilson and Steve Chestnut count particles released from radioactive materials in Advanced Physics III class.

In their Earth Science class, Robert Frazier, Sherri Hessman and Kenny Rynard learn to use special equipment.

Use of live specimens was part of the learning experience of these Botany II pupils: Patty Taylor, Don Grover, Karen Beech.

Biology Provides Live Program

New biology teachers this year were Messrs. Ray Reed, Roy Terrell, Ward Whalin, Miss Joanna Guss, and Mr. John Peters, an exchange teacher from England.

In cooperation with the Building Trades Department, the Biological Science Department developed a new Animal Room in the Barn. One of Tech's oldest buildings has been converted into an all-science facility including three classrooms and a culture room.

The landscaping class, under the direction of Mr. Scott McCoy, deserves much credit for its work planting new trees, shrubs, and grass around the campus.

The Biological Science Department built a nature preserve around 1920 which flourished until 1960 when School 101 was built. Mr. John Kendrick worked to transplant the specimens in the area west of the student parking lot, but some of the plants were lost. Botanists still hope for a completely new preserve in the future.

Used as an exhibit for Open House, this cockatoo was loaned from the Indianapolis Zoo.

Exchanging gazes in the Biological Science Department at Open House, were Mr. Longshore and this boa constrictor.

Skill Building

Glenn Crawford, Jacqueline Clevenger, Don Yates and Roger Wiley are participants in a sight conservation typing class.

Typing classes built speed records. Thomas Garrett, Elaine Illey and Sally Mitchell worked under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Stout.

Five girls in Stenography III attained speeds of over 100 words per minute. Taking dictation clockwise beginning

Is Big Business

Various courses offered in Tech's Business Education Department are helpful in planning future careers. Courses such as shorthand and typing acquaint prospective employees with skills that will be in demand when they begin searching for jobs. Students are aided by 23 skilled teachers as they go about their studies of the business world.

A newly developed area is that of data processing. Tech is the only school in Indiana with adequate equipment to offer these courses. The equipment is leased to the school at an average of $1,000 a month. Enrollment rose from 168 to 300 students in the fall semester. This new program offers students an opportunity to see what the world of automation has to offer.

Students from other city high schools also may take advantage of the data processing courses by spending part of their school day at Tech and the other part at their own schools.

When Mr. Lewis Gilfoy, Director of Secondary Instruction, visited commercial classes, Maureen Minor explained her task to him.

Mastering the intricacies of Data Processing class kept Michael Huffman, Judy Frantzreb and Suzy Harvey busy.

Prize winning marching unit saluted veterans on their day.

Cadet Tactics Honor Tech

Tech Color Guard members, Mike Moran, John Wood, Hans Sigg, and Clinton Sparks march for their country.

In ROTC, cadets learn how to drill and are given instruction in military discipline. Map reading and advanced combat tactics also are on the agenda. Cadets become expert in handling weapons by qualifying on the rifle range. They learn to take apart and reassemble M-1's and other weapons, and some can perform this feat in record time.

The Veterans' Day parade afforded an opportunity for special recognition when the 325-man unit representing Tech was judged best in the parade. The award, an American flag, was presented by Mr. Roy C. Echols, president of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce during the Veterans' Day dinner at the Indiana Roof Ballroom. Cadet Lt. Col. Gregory Young accepted the award for Tech.

"Well, Spurr, you took it apart. Now let's see you put it back together again," commanded M/Sgt. Arthur G. Wilkinson. Pvt. Curtis Brown watched.

Health Education Develops Titans

Subjects offered by the Health and Physical Education Department inform pupils on the body functions, care of the body, and the best ways to keep the body active through formal and recreational activities.

Health Education teaches the structure and functions of the body. Alcohol Education informs pupils on alcohol and its effects on the body, and includes a study of narcotics.

Driver Education teaches pupils the knowledge and skill of driving safely, good insurance against automobile accidents.

Physical Education develops the muscular and organic systems of the body and teaches the skills necessary to remain physically active throughout life.

Sight Saving aids and guides people in their school subjects who have visual problems and teaches them how to live successfully with a physical handicap.

Health education pupils got down to the bare bone of fact.

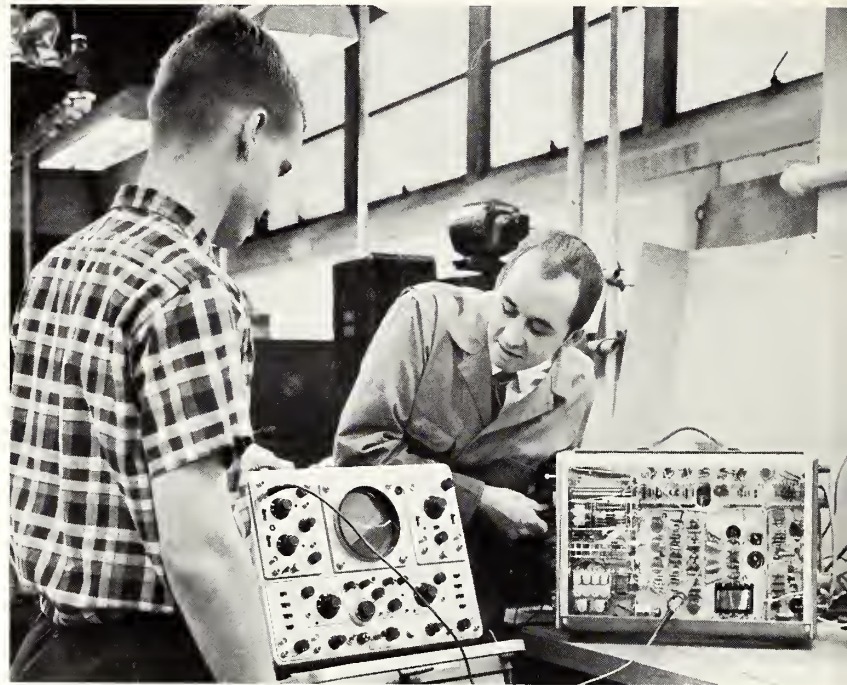

Titans worked out in '66.

Current Interest Sparks Shop

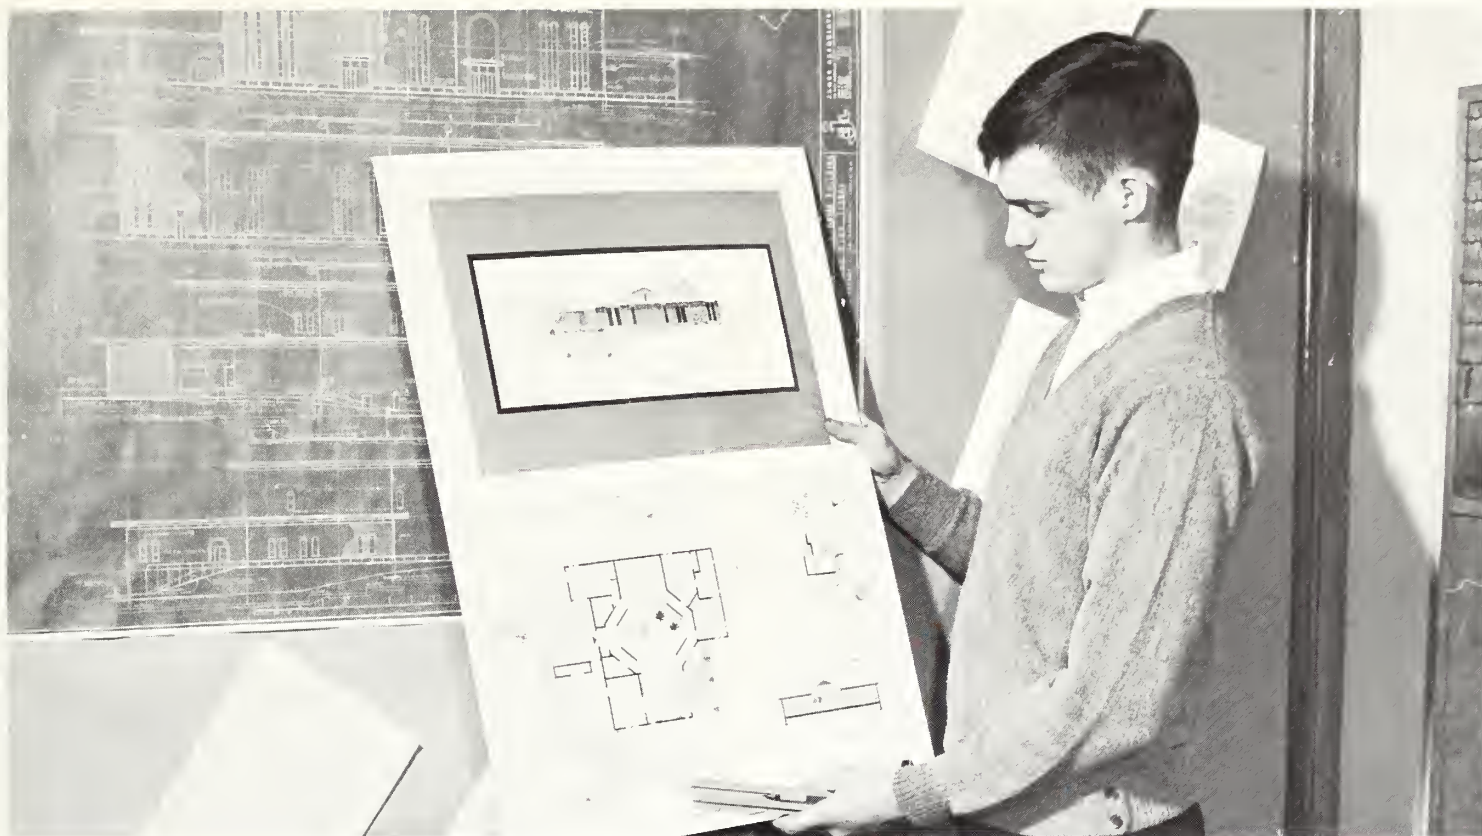

Keeping pace with an ever changing field, Tech's Electrical Department offered classes in electricity, electronics, electrical maintenance, refrigeration, and radio and TV service. Pupils learned the characteristics of many AC and DC machines, automated controls, and intricate wiring connections. The boys studied shop methods and practical procedures in the repair of electrical equipment. Refrigerators, air conditioners, dehumidifiers, ice-cube makers, radios, audio amplifiers, and televisions were repaired and studied by the boys in these classes.

Mr. Lewis Marshall and student, Ronald Morris repaired and checked one oscilloscope by another.

Testing a DC motor generator set for efficiency of operation were Ronald Morris, James McCormick, Arthur Emlow, and William Tracy.

Jerry Dockery, a member of the Architectural Drafting V class observed the work of a graduate.

Techites Draft Future Blueprints

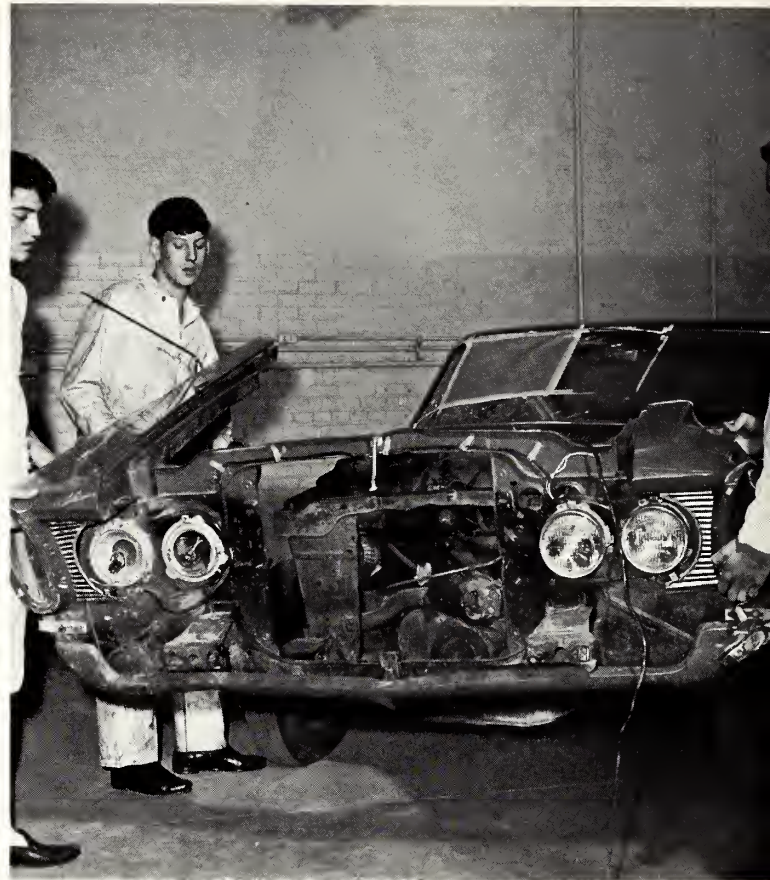

John Kuhn, drafting assistant, operated the Ozalid, a drawing duplicator.

Tech's Drafting Department provided the basic and specialized training necessary to prepare pupils as designers of the products and structures of the future. Drafting is essential, for it is necessary to describe the ideas and dreams of the engineer or architect with such clarity and exactness that skilled workmen can make the desired object or structure.

Beginning drafting courses teach the fundamentals and provide exploratory experiences in several different specialized areas. Pupils who discover that they have talent in an area can pursue it further by continuing in either architectural or machine drafting.

Many pupils find the experiences encountered in the basic drafting courses are of value in a chosen occupation, and still others find their knowledge extremely useful in planning and constructing many leisure time projects.

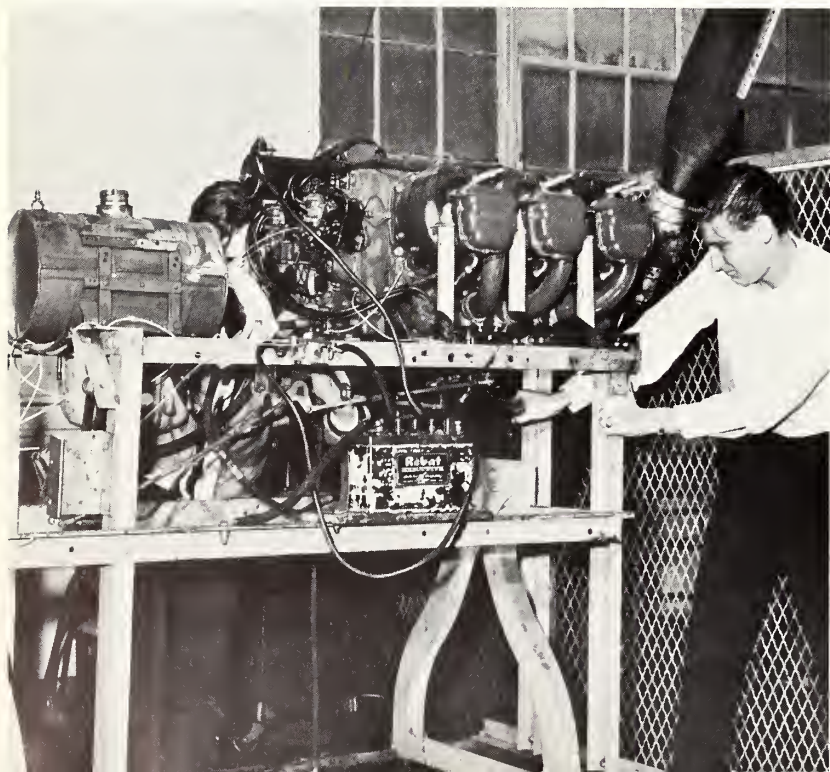

Dean Bauerle, Claude Smith, and Ronald Perkins worked on tuning up cars in their Auto Trades class.

Junior mechanics Larry Wilson, Alvin Milton, and Howard Snorden learned the basics of their chosen profession, auto body repair.

Shop Pupils Keep Motors Running

Robert Gatlin and James Graves examine an airplane engine in Aviation Shop.

In the Auto Trades Department many junior mechanics preparing for a vocation worked on car and airplane motors.

Every year one nationally known auto manufacturer sponsors a nation-wide trouble-shooting contest. Mr. Sam Dudkowsky, head of the department, selects ten of the best boys from the auto classes and by several tests eliminates them until he has determined the top four. The two highest represent Tech, and the others are alternates. If they win the regional contest which is held at Tech, they advance to the national finals at Detroit. The winners receive scholarships and are given job opportunities in the sponsor's plant.

Aviation Mechanics, also in the Auto Trades Department, attracts pupils who wish to learn the fundamentals of airplane engines.

Learn Today; Build Tomorrow

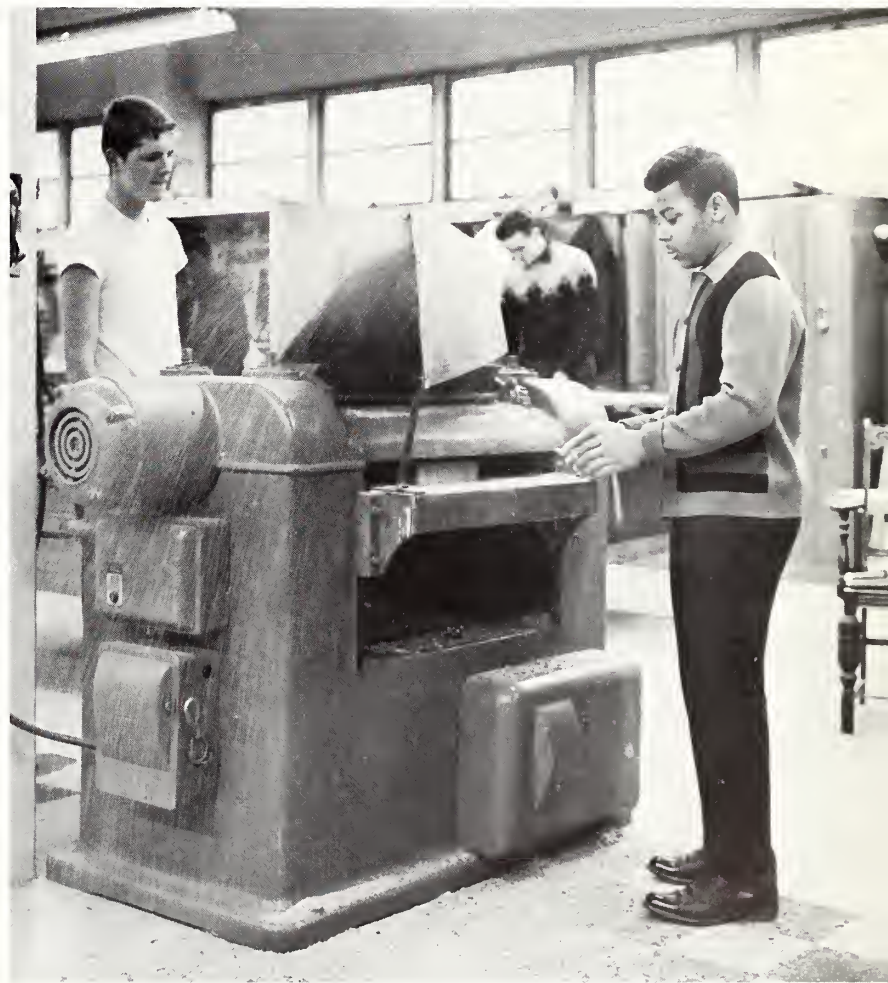

John Rouse watched Steve Barnes dress down a length of wood in Cabinet Making class.

Classes in carpentry, cabinet-making, plumbing, masonry, and painting and decorating make up the five different areas covered by the Building Trades Department. Five vocational classes met four periods a day and offered two credits each. The 21 other classes had an enrollment of 400 pre-vocational pupils. The department was equipped with modern facilities to conduct classes on a high vocational level. Eight teachers headed by Mr. Morris O. Woods provided instruction.

"Keep that paint flying, boys!" said teacher Mr. Philip High. Clifton and Steve Durham wielded brushes as Ken Wisdom held the scaffold in this stagecraft project.

Adolphus Rogers and Curlee Griffin worked on a line of pipe in Plumbing class.

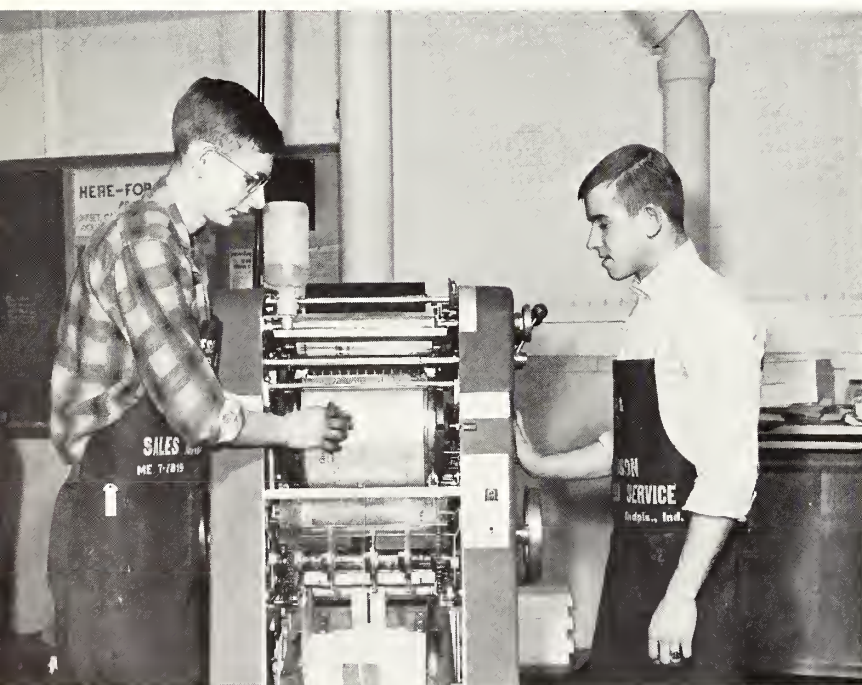

Floyd Evans ran the complicated Linotype machine.

Dean Shanklin and N. Marty Pitts worked together operating the letter press.

Pupils Gain Printshop Experience

Rickey Whitt and Don McClary printed the 1966 calendar using the latest offset printing process.

Located in the south end of the Old Shop Building, the Printing Department headlined the year by printing the Arsenal Cannon and other official publications of both the school and the Instruction Center. During the first semester the Arsenal Cannon was printed by off-set for the first time.

The staff is composed of five printing teachers. Mr. Clyde Armel heads the department.

The experience gained by Tech pupils in this department has produced many excellent printers. After graduation, employment for the students is approximately 99%. Presently there are many job openings.

Tech's teachers are always keeping up to date on industry and the printing world during the summer. They maintain a bulletin board which changes every month. The bulletin board hangs in the Print Shop window to greet all callers.

Men of Metal Acquire Skills

The Metal Trades Department is divided into five distinct trades: welding, foundry, pattern-making, machine shop, and sheet metal. All of the classes have equipment comparable to that in industry. All of the trades offer well paid jobs for high school graduates with vocational training. Foundry pupils poured their own cast iron, aluminum and brass. They made small cannons as souvenirs for visitors.

Floyd Wisdom and Harold Palmer drew aluminum to pour it in Foundry class.

James Barton and Glen Miles made waste cans in Sheet Metal class.

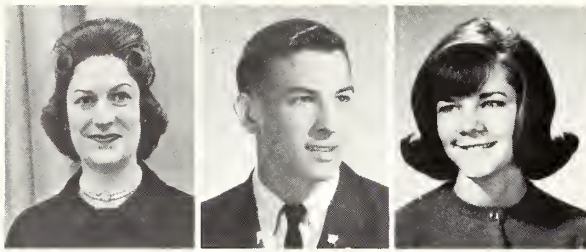

Steve Harris and Steve Parrish brazed T-joints in Welding class.

RCA VICTOR Makes Indiana the Color Television Capital of the World

RCA pioneered and perfected Color TV. Today more people own RCA Victor Color TV than all other leading brands combined. These RCA Victor sets were made here in Indiana by some of RCA's 17,000 Hoosier workers. This helps insure a dynamic growth economy for our state.

 THE MOST TRUSTED NAME IN ELECTRONICS

Indianapolis—RCA Victor furniture stylists look at sketches for a new Mediterranean lowboy model. Styling, Engineering, Advertising and Sales Departments for RCA Victor home Instruments, as well as much of the actual manufacturing, are headquartered here.

Monticello—Hand rubbing imparts a mellow lustre to this RCA Victor Color TV cabinet. Before leaving here, each cabinet will pass through many skilled hands and as many as 16 finishing operations. RCA Victor cabinet quality rivals that of the finest custom furniture.
